Carver High School

Readers, we are here again with the latest happenings at Carver.

The Seniors had a very interesting discussion on "Should Eighteen Year Olds Be Drafted?" The Principal and a former graduate, Dexter Johnson, were guests last Friday during the discussion. The Juniors were in last Tuesday to join in the discussion.

The Senior and Junior Physical Education Classes spent an enjoyable afternoon bowling last Thursday. The girls and boys were shown the fundamentals of how to bowl and score. Gracie Daniel, a senior, was the highest scorer.

The Seniors are working hard on the "Miss Carver" contest. Their Valentine's Dance, which was given last Wednesday, was a success. They are planning a movie to be given February 21.

We are glad to welcome our new student, who is in the Senior class, Elsie V. Scruggs, hailing from Beckley, W. Va.

The Juniors are learning to use the Library effectively. You should see them. They are like intelligent college students, walking around the library securing information, understanding the card catalogue system.

McKinley Tanner visited the county library Monday afternoon. He secured abundant information on How to Use the Library, and the main essentials of the subject, author, and title cards. He states he enjoyed his visit and advises others to visit it, for it is placed there for the purpose of obtaining information.

The Junior Class is busy preparing for their Junior and Senior Prom. They have already secured information from the National Supply Company in Iowa. So, Seniors, get your partners in readiness for this affair.

The Ninth Grade is in keen competition concerning the popularity contest. This class saw a movie last week on, "Bread Making." The boys in the class saw an agricultural movie on "Control of Common Baby Chick Diseases."

The Juniors are all excited over who will win the new "88 Oldsmobile" that the Student Scholarship Association of Virginia State College is offering Saturday. Some say how proud they will be if they win, others say they will sell it and put the money in the bank for securing their future education. Hope one wins.

Our good friend, Bass Ferguson seems out of circulation. What did happen?

Until next week, our closing thought:

"Fear always springs from ignorance."

DISEASE CONTROLS ARE LISTED

A disease which makes a knotty black growth on the twigs of cherries and plums often plagues home fruit growers, says John M. Amos, associate plant pathologist at V. P. I.

Although control measures for heavy infestations are not very satisfactory, pruning out all infected wood will help fight infestations, Amos says. Make the cuts 4 to 6 inches below the area.

Burn the wood that is cut and only because it can spread infection. The knots usually do not show up until the second year, so two years of pruning are necessary to make satisfactory headway against the unsightly disease.

Another control practice is to check wild plums or other wild trees in the neighborhood.

Sprays containing copper, applied for leaf-spot disease control, also will help control black knot-disease.
